Etiquette Corner

Sitting:

While in the DoJang, we always sit cross legged or kneeling with the spine straight. Much like standing, it shows mental strength and physical readiness. Pointing the bottoms of your feet towards a senior rank is disrespectful. When sitting for extended periods of time, standing to stretch the legs is permitted. Sitting on the mats, targets, windowsills, or anything other than the floor during training should be avoided unless given expressed permission or instruction.
