Etiquette Corner

Bowing (part 4)

It was made popular in movies that when you bow “never take your eyes off your opponent”. This is not consistent with proper bowing technique. One should keep the spine straight (including the neck) and bend from the waist to 45-90 degrees. Bowing is a sign of respect and infers trust; therefore, if you do not trust someone, you should not bow to them in the first place. When bowing correctly, you should be able to see your surrounding with your peripheral vision.
